

DREXEL UNIVERSITY

Physician Assistant Department

College of Nursing and Health Professions

Angelina Zebuski MHS PA-C
Clinical Instructor
Emergency Medicine Clinical Coordinator
Drexel University Physician Assistant Program
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
October 20, 2023

Greetings,

I am writing this letter to enthusiastically praise Hina Mazharuddin of Physician Assistants in Virtual and Telehealth Medicine (PAVMT) for their outstanding contributions and commitment as a virtual medicine lecturer at Drexel University. As a clinical coordinator at Drexel university, I have had the opportunity to work closely with Hina Mazharuddin, and I can verify her teaching abilities and dedication to the field of virtual medicine.

Hina Mazharuddin has advanced the quality and effectiveness of virtual medicine education at our institution. Her knowledge and expertise in the field are truly remarkable, and she has demonstrated a deep understanding of the evolving trends and technologies in virtual medicine. This knowledge has translated into creating engaging and useful lectures that have significantly improved the learning experiences of our students.

In addition to her expertise, Hina Mazharuddin is a highly dedicated and approachable educator. Her lecture was informative and engaging, fostering an interactive learning platform that enhances student participation and critical thinking.

Furthermore, Hina Mazharuddin has received high praise and positive responses from our students.

In conclusion, I highly recommend Hina Mazharuddin of PAVMT for any lecture related to virtual medicine education. Her expertise, dedication, and superb teaching abilities make her an asset to any institution.

Sincerely,

Angelina Zebuski

Angelina Zebuski
Clinical Instructor
Emergency Medicine Clinical Coordinator
Drexel University Physician Assistant Program

DREXEL UNIVERSITY

Physician Assistant
Department

College of Nursing and Health Professions